Dear Professor

25X1A5a

It was a particularly flattering experience to see you in Washington recently because you remembered our earlier meeting and discussion which must have taken place nine years ago. This year, it is my turn to visit the lead Ivy League Universities and to interview persons who would be interested in hearing of the career opportunities offered by the Central Intelligence Agency. Mr. [REDACTED] the Agency's local representative, and I plan to be at [REDACTED] from 2-4 November 1959.

Our experience has been that it is most beneficial to make a short presentation to groups of students who are generally interested and to follow this up with individual interviews. If we could follow this arrangement, it would be most appreciated.

While we are interested in talking to capable economists at all levels of experience and training, we are particularly interested in those who have completed a substantial amount of graduate training. As you know, we have a number of persons on our staff who have received MA's in Russian Studies or PhD's in Economics from [REDACTED]. This group has turned out particularly well and we hope that it will be possible to interest equally qualified students on our current visit.

Sincerely yours,
